Welcome to the 34th Annual Mid-Atlantic Undergraduate Social Research Conference

Friday, April 11, 2014

Hosted by Villanova University, Villanova, PA

Sponsored by the Department of Sociology & Criminology
WELCOME

Welcome to the 34th Annual Mid-Atlantic Undergraduate Social Research Conference (MAUSRC). Since the first conference of twenty-three participants at Elizabethtown College in 1981, the Mid-Atlantic Undergraduate Social Research Conference has provided an opportunity for undergraduates to present the results of their social research. The presentation and exposure to social research in several social science disciplines has given students an opportunity to showcase and strengthen their analytical, scholarly, and public speaking skills.

Villanova University is honored to be able to host the conference for the second consecutive year. We are pleased to welcome students and faculty from thirteen schools: Arcadia University, Cheyney University, Drexel University, Elizabethtown College, Haverford College, Hood College, Marywood University, St. Joseph's University, Swarthmore College, Temple University, University of Pennsylvania, West Chester University, and York Country Day School (affiliated with York College). The organizers appreciate the great efforts that everyone makes to participate in the conference and to share their knowledge and expertise. We congratulate the presenters and commend the schools, faculty, and staff that have made the conference possible.

—Drs. Robert DeFina, Brian Jones, Thomas Arvanites, and Peter Knapp

The History of the Mid-Atlantic Undergraduate Social Research Conference

The Mid-Atlantic Undergraduate Social Research Conference was first convened on the Elizabethtown College campus on April 6, 1981. The idea of having an undergraduate research conference in the Mid-Atlantic area emerged during a telephone call between Elizabethtown College Professor Donald B. Kraybill and Gettysburg College Professor Donald Hinrichs in the fall of 1980. After agreeing that such a conference would be helpful for students enrolled in their social science courses, Dr. Kraybill agreed to host the first one at Elizabethtown College in 1981 and Dr. Hinrichs agreed to sponsor the second one at Gettysburg College in the spring of 1982. With that impetus, the conference gradually evolved and expanded as more faculty members from other schools supported it by hosting the conference and sending their students.

One of the remarkable things about the conference is that it operates successfully without an on-going steering committee or a budget. Each college or university that agrees to host the event provides the finances for their conference and organizes the mailing and promotions. Organizing and promoting the conference takes considerable work, but faculty and staff from schools in the region have generously contributed their time and leadership so that the conference can thrive and provide an important opportunity for the professional development of their students.

Welcoming Remarks
Jean Ann Linney, Ph.D.

Jean Ann Linney, Ph.D. was appointed Dean of Villanova University's College of Liberal Arts and Sciences in 2011. As Dean of the oldest and largest of the University’s five colleges, she serves as chief administrator and chairperson of the College—which has approximately 4,500 students (undergraduate and graduate), 400 faculty, 130 staff members and an alumni body of 55,000.

Prior to her arrival at Villanova, Dean Linney served in senior administrative positions at the University of Alabama at Birmingham, the University of Notre Dame and the University of South Carolina.

Dean Linney is an award-winning teacher and scholar committed to both undergraduate and graduate education. Her teaching and research focused in the areas of community psychology, prevention science and the promotion of mental health. She has published three books, and her writings on preventive interventions with children and adolescents, environmental assessment, race relations and the effects of selected social policies on child mental health and well-being have appeared in more than 60 publications. She is a fellow of the Society for Community Research and Action, the American Psychological Association and the Association for Psychological Science. She is a past president of the Society for Community Research and Action. Dean Linney earned her bachelor's degree from Hobart and William Smith Colleges and her master's and doctoral degrees in psychology from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Michael J. Engle, Esquire

Michael J. Engle, Esquire is a partner in the Philadelphia-based law firm of Greenblatt, Pierce, Engle, Funt & Flores, LLC. Mr. Engle leads the firm’s federal criminal defense group as well as the white collar defense and corporate investigations practice. As a recent Past President of the Pennsylvania Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers (PACDL), Mr. Engle has represented the interests of criminal defense attorneys throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Mr. Engle’s criminal practice includes cases ranging from typical state court matters to complex white-collar investigations and prosecutions. Mr. Engle has handled numerous cases in Pennsylvania state courts as well as federal courts throughout Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, and his practice includes the representation of individuals, professionals, public officials, corporations, closely held companies, and non-profit organizations.

Since 2003, Mr. Engle has represented numerous indigent defendants by participating on the Criminal Justice Act panel in the Federal District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. In 2011, Mr. Engle was elected as a Fellow of the prestigious American Board of Criminal Lawyers and he has earned the preeminent AV rating from Martindale-Hubbell for both legal ability and ethical standards. Currently, Mr. Engle serves as the co-chair of PACDL’s white collar practice committee and as the Vice-Chair of the Philadelphia Chapter of PACDL. Mr. Engle is a former adjunct professor in the criminal justice department of Delaware County Community College, where he taught classes on criminal law, criminal procedure and juvenile delinquency. He is a published author of three academic articles in the fields of sociology and criminology, and he is also a frequent lecturer at Villanova University where he discusses the topic of serial murder. A summa cum laude graduate of Villanova University with a degree in sociology, Mr. Engle received his law degree from The George Washington University Law School in Washington, D.C.
